

Sharing with an Attorney

By Kristina Reeve

I was doing businesses and ended up selling both Great Controversys that were in my bag. However, I decided to finish the large office building I was in before calling for more books. On the third floor, an attorney looked at the health book, then set it down and motioned me into his office. "I'm tired of working, and need a break, so I'll talk to you. Have you heard about the Supreme Court ruling yesterday, on the banning of the Pledge of Allegiance in public school?" He pulled out the newspaper and began to show me what it said. I wanted to get going and not waste time, but God impressed me to keep talking and making friends, steering back the conversation to the books every chance I got. He asked me what I was doing, what kind of school, what religion, etc. When our conversation steered to the Bible, he said that he had a problem with the "eye for eye, tooth for tooth" in the Old Testament. I explained about Christ's principle of "turning the other cheek", and he agreed with me!! Then he told me that he is Catholic. Hmmm!

Unexpectedly, he asked if I had read last week's Time Magazine. He said there was a whole article on Daniel and Revelation, but it made no sense to him. "I need to study Daniel and Revelation and see if I can understand them." he concluded.

Immediately I thought of the Great Controversy, but I didn't have any in my bag! I called for more books, but my leader was out of radio range. So I canvassed the attorney on the book anyway, and he wanted it! I also showed him God's Answers and he liked that one as well. He asked me what the difference is between Seventh Day Adventists and other Christians, then he asked what I believed about Holy Mother Mary, the apparitions, etc. We had a whole Bible study, and I was really praying for wisdom! Just then, my leader called me on the radio and brought me the Great Controversys, so I had to go downstairs to get them.

When I came back with the books, I discovered that he had been reading the God's Answers while I was gone—the chapter on the Sabbath, of all things! I was shocked! He finally decided to buy both Great Controversy and God's Answers! PRAISE the LORD—a miracle indeed!!
